

GUIDING POLICY ON DIVERSITY, EQUITY AND INCLUSION

American Academy of Neurology
American Academy of Neurology Institute

1. Background

The American Academy of Neurology and American Academy of Neurology Institute (AAN) is firmly committed to embracing the diversity of our members, staff and the communities they serve and affirms the need for equity and inclusiveness in our organization, our profession, and the care we provide to our patients.

Embracing and leveraging diversity in an organization has proven to be critical in achieving success in both healthcare delivery and fortitude of business. This must be an ongoing focus for the AAN's pursuit of its vision to be indispensable to its members. The AAN has demonstrated commitment to diversity and inclusion for decades. Over time, our programmatic efforts have expanded vertically across the organization.

The AAN's mission is to promote the highest quality patient-centered neurologic care and enhance member career satisfaction. To that end, the AAN is committed to striving for equity for all patients and all members. Equity for our patients means that each individual has a fair chance to achieve their health potential without differences in access, treatments, or outcomes for certain populations. For our members, equity means each professional can reach their fullest potential without differences in opportunity, pay, recognition, or advancement for certain populations. Especially in the setting of an increasingly diverse patient and member population, disparities in neurologic care and career inequities are in direct conflict with the AAN's mission.

Diversity encompasses the variety of personal, social identity, experiences, skills, knowledge, and attributes that shape every one of us. The AAN recognizes that every individual has a culture. Inclusion is the act of employing systems, policies and practices that support, engage, and demonstrate value for all individuals. Diversity of thought and the inclusion of new ideas and perspectives can help an organization to increase its creativity, generate new ideas, enhance problem solving, and increase flexibility, productivity, and effectiveness.

2. Value Statement

The American Academy of Neurology affirms the value of diversity and the importance of inclusion and equity. As such, the AAN is committed to ongoing dialogue across cultural lines as a strategy for excellence in serving our members as well as addressing the needs of an increasingly diverse society.

3. Membership

The AAN actively promotes careers in the neurosciences to historically under-represented groups to ensure a diversity of experience and breadth of perspective among the membership. We explicitly engage members and volunteers across a range of dimensions of diversity in service to the association, who offer their time and talent in a way to ensure that the association can effectively meet the needs of all patients with neurologic illness. The AAN has incorporated equity, diversity and inclusion in its core values and diversity is expected, as appropriate, in all association programs, products, and services.

4. Staff

The AAN will be intentional and deliberate about attracting talented individuals who bring a range of skills, experiences, perspectives, knowledge, and expertise to our workplace. The organization strives to assure a workplace experience for staff defined by a welcoming and inclusive environment. The staff values and employment policies will be consistent with the guiding principles of this policy.
